EVENT ELIGIBLE

Small events start here.

For all session durations, I say we just leave it clean and simple: no extra language. Just 1 hour, 2 hours, 3 hours, etc. no other description or language. Same for Taylor's too.

Make them all say event eligible, except for 1 hour.

POWDERSVILLE PAGE TAYLOR'S MILL PAGE FAQ

white-wall-mockup.vercel.app

The three bullet points at bottom:

2 hours - full day trigger event flow. 1 hour can't be used for an event.

Aldo's after I select the amount of time I want, can it auto-scroll down to the calendar to force the start time and date I want for my session?

After selecting that, can it auto go to step two: Session Details, where we have them fill out alllllll their info and questions we want and stuff?

After submit on that, then show optional add ons.

<https://studione.simplybook.net/v2/#book>

This studios checkout and add on process is the definition of perfect.

Add ons:

This page is freaking sick.

One big thing: I'd love to make scrollers. So you can scroll and select what you want. Lemme try to explain.

Backdrops:

Keep thumbnail same as is rn.

But instead of bubbles to select your color, make it small horizontal carousel scroll thing; with its own optional add on for each backdrop color. Use the photos in here. Essentially the first option should say All Backdrops and be $50, and show the thumbnail of the photo with all of the. Then if you scroll to the right through the options, you'll see a thumbnail with each color backdrop, and you can select a checkmark to add on that color.

Visual add-ons

This is where Acuity's native text-only options get replaced with a Studio One-style visual layer. Every add-on card already has a photo slot.

I love this. It flows so well. I wonder if we can do this look for the backdrops and rolling a walls, and have it so you can add it on by tapping a checkbox or something.
